Foreign Tuble Luxury-Where the Plant Grows-How It Is Brought to Market.

"The importation of truffles to this country is on the increase," said Jacob Meyer, who, until recently, was engaged in raising them in Germany, near great luxury in Europe, and I have often wondered why they were not more used here."

"What are truffles?"

"They are a fungus growth, similar to the mushroom, and are found generally in soil impregnated with lime, and always in the neighborhood of oak the ground, at a distance varying from 1387tf Paw Paw, Mic an inch to a foot, and are supposed to be a parasite living in their early stage upon the roots of trees. They are oblong or spherical, and vary from the size of an English walnut to that of a large potato. Quite frequently I have known them to weigh two pounds, and once I found one that weighed three and a half pounds. Some are of a dull white color, but the black or brown truffle has the finest flavor and brings the best price. Their surface is rough, and covered with excrescences resembling warts, and judging from the exterior they would not be selected as an article of food. Internally they resemble a dark-colored marble, and are different from other known forms of fungi.

But little is known about their propagation and growth. The reproductive portion is found in minute sacs, which Mich.

Germany, haly, Australia and Africa. I have never heard of any belog discovered in this country. My experience here, where I have endeavored to transplant them, as well as in Germany, where I spent many years in fulle efforts to cultivate them artificially, has led me to approve the common opinion of truffic-hanters, that a truffle is the most contrary thing in the world. Cut up fine and dissolve one half har in half gallon of het water. Pour half this dissolved soap into a tab with just sufficient hot water to cover a beiler full of clothes. Then put the civities in to soak, rubbing plenty of soap in the most soiled parts. Be sure that the soaking water is hot; soak the clothes half an hour; stir them occasionally so that they may get the full benefit of the hot suds; pour the remainder of the dissolved soap into the boiler, adding sufficient water to cover the clothes; wring them lightly out of the suds. Some the stail need spots and place loosely in the boiler; hold as to vo minutes, rinse well, blue and hang to dry. Do not crowd the boiler too full. The same boiling water may be used for further beiling by adding a little soap to each boiler-full of clothes. Fannels and prints should not be boiled, only a little rubbing required after saaking. This soap will cleanse clothing as theroughly as any other without the use of the boiler. We prefer and recommend the boiling process as in itself a cleansing process, saving labor, the wear of the wash-board, and being the best disinfectent known, it is ensier to boil the dirt out than to rub it out. You can cleanse perfectly the finest fabric without his soap, press water cut with the hand; boil 3 to 3 minutes in clean such made with this soap, press water cut with the hand; boil 3 to 5 minutes and boil 3 to 5 minutes, rives, stretch on frame, or pin every scalled to carpetover a sheet to dry; no brothing required.
